COMMUNICATION THAT CONNECTS, CONVERTS, AND INSPIRES.

Robert Kennedy III, aka RK3, is a communication coach, international keynote speaker, and former science teacher who believes powerful things happen when you own your voice.

For over a decade, he's helped executives, business leaders and business owners turn everyday communication into something that connects, converts, and inspires. From Fortune 500s to associations, from the U.S. Coast Guard to the Baltimore Ravens, RK3's clients trust him to make communication more human and a whole lot more effective.

He's written four books (but who's counting?), hosted seven podcasts (including the Speakernomics podcast for the National Speakers Association), and even shared his take on confident communication on TV networks including Fox & CW. These days, he spends most of his time helping people show up, on stage, on video, or in the boardroom, with stories that are memorable, meaningful and transformational.

When he's not on stage or in the studio, you'll find him coaching high school baseball, repping the New York Yankees, and (just to keep life interesting) still rooting for the New York Jets.

Oh, and fun fact: his wife puts Reese's Peanut Butter Cups in his stocking every Christmas. It's a whole thing.

If you're ready to move from just talking at people to truly connecting with them, Robert Kennedy III (RK3) is ready to show you how.
